Andreas Mikrogianakis HOCKEY

At just 18 years old, Andreas Mikrogianakis has already become one of Aurora's brightest hockey stars — a dynamic young athlete whose skill, speed, and determination have taken him from local arenas to the national stage. Known for his relentless work ethic and team-first mindset, Andreas is not only a standout player on the ice but also an inspiring example of what can be achieved through passion, perseverance, and community pride.

A proud Aurora, Ontario native, Andreas began his journey on home ice, rising through the ranks of local hockey programs before joining the Aurora Tigers Junior A team in the Ontario Junior Hockey League (OJHL). Despite being one of the youngest players on the roster, he quickly established himself as a top scorer, impressing teammates and coaches alike with his strong two-way play and on-ice intelligence. His remarkable season caught national attention — leading to his selection to Team Canada East U19, where he represented his country in international competition.

Andreas's success story didn't stop there. His commitment to continuous growth and excellence earned him a spot with the Brooks Bandits in the British Columbia Hockey League (BCHL) — one of Canada's premier junior hockey organizations known for developing top NCAA and professional players. His strong performance and leadership have solidified his reputation as one of the nation's rising talents.

His next chapter is already written: Andreas has earned a NCAA Division I commitment to the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT), where he will compete with the RIT Tigers beginning in the 2027–2028 season within the Atlantic Hockey America Conference. It's a remarkable milestone that places him among the few Canadian junior players achieving both athletic and academic excellence at the highest level.

Off the ice, Andreas's character shines just as brightly. A graduate of Light of Christ Elementary School and Cardinal Carter Catholic High School, he remains deeply connected to his Aurora roots — embodying the values of discipline, humility, and community spirit. He continues to inspire local athletes by showing that great things can start right here at home.

Described by coaches as a creative playmaker with exceptional hockey IQ, Andreas plays with the confidence and composure of a seasoned veteran. His fearless approach — combined with his speed, agility, and vision — makes him a threat every time he steps on the ice.

With every stride, pass, and goal, Andreas Mikrogianakis represents the next generation of Aurora excellence. His journey from local standout to national competitor and future NCAA athlete is a testament to his drive, dedication, and love of the game.

His accomplishments at such a young age — paired with his character and leadership — make him not only a rising star in Canadian hockey, but also a true role model for the youth of Aurora.
